

ERISA, Disability and Leave Laws

Our attorneys represent clients in state and federal courts and before administrative agencies on a regular basis regarding a variety of ERISA, disability and leave issues, and regularly consult with clients regarding compliance in these areas to avoid litigation where possible.

The specific types of claims we litigate on behalf of employers in these areas include interference and retaliation claims arising under the federal Family and Medical Leave Act; retaliation and benefits-related claims under ERISA; failure-to-accommodate and discrimination claims under the Americans with Disabilities Act; and similar claims arising under local and state law.

These matters include withdrawal liability, multiemployer plan contribution disputes, benefit disputes, fiduciary obligations, including under Employer Stock Ownership Plans ("ESOP's"), Department of Labor and Fringe Benefit audits, and COBRA and HIPAA disputes.

This includes the preparation of position statements and submission of responsive materials to the agency, as well as contested hearings.
