

Antonio Caldarone Quoted in Chicago Tribune - Are employers liable if workers get sick with COVID-19? As businesses prepare to reopen, worker safety is a priority.

Alexia Elejalde-Ruiz
Chicago Tribune
05.04.2020

Attorneys

Antonio Caldarone

Practice Areas

Counseling and Transactional

Labor Management
Relations

Private and Public Sector
Employment Litigation

Antonio Caldarone was recently quoted in the Chicago Tribune - Are employers liable if workers get sick with COVID-19? As businesses prepare to reopen, worker safety is a priority.

To protect against lawsuits, attorneys have been advising companies to implement safety measures recommended by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and state and local authorities.

“If employers can show they took reasonable efforts based on the information available, they will be in a very good spot to defend themselves,” said Antonio Caldarone, an attorney with Laner Muchin who represents management in labor and employment cases. In some cases employers have to be sure the safety measures themselves don’t pose other risks to workers, like wearing masks that could interfere with machinery or catch fire.”

Antonio Caldarone Quoted in Chicago Tribune - Are employers liable if workers get sick with COVID-19? As businesses prepare to reopen, worker safety is a priority.

Related Materials

May 4, 2020: If you get sick with COVID-19, is your employer liable? As businesses prepare to reopen, worker safety is a priority. - Chicago Tribune